JFK BLASTS RAPE SCANDAL FROM SECRET HIDEOUT!

Who says kitties can't breathe under water?

AQUA-PUSSY Inger decides her mistress Anne Norline by snoozing with the goldfish.

INCREDIBLE CAT NAPS WITH FISH

By JOE BERGER

A kooky kitty named Inger has fallen so madly in love with three ugly old goldfish that she actually sleeps with her swimming sweeties — underwater!

"The vet can't believe it — no body can believe it till they see it with their own eyes," admits Inger's mystified mistress, Anne Norline.

"They say cats can't breathe underwater, but she's so crazy about those dumb old fish she's found a way to do it. She just climbs into the bowl and struggles down for a nap, like it's perfectly natural."

Adoring Anne realized there was something odd about Inger shortly after she found the bedraggled tabby wandering lost and alone outside her home in Stockholm, Sweden.

"She was such a loving little kitty, but weird," the flabbergasted secretary told a reporter. "She'd sit for hours, staring at my fishbowl in a trance.

"At first I thought she was figuring on hopping in there and making a meal out of poor Olaf, Lars and Olof — but after a while she started rubbing up against the bowl and purring like she was crazy in love," said Anne, 31. "I thought that was the goofiest thing I ever saw."

But unsuspecting Anne really got a shock the day she came home and found Inger curled up underwater — with the goldfish calmly sipping at her nose.

"I was so startled my heart almost jumped out of my chest," she recalled. "I was sure Inger had fallen in the fishbowl and drowned.

"Then I got a closer look and saw she was just taking a little catnap in there. And she wasn't having a bit of trouble breathing, either.

"Every once in a while one of those fish would swim by and she'd reach out and give it a little kiss." And every day since then, the dingbat cat has been leaping into the water to visit with her finny friends.

"Inger could reach out and gobble up those fish with one gulp," said Anne. "But I know now she'd never do it — 'cause she loves them too much."

Cop rewards good deed with tickets

Bus-gunner Jose Moreno raced up to a cop to report a drunk driver — and got $85 worth of tickets himself.

Moreno was driving home in Veracruz, Mexico, one night when he saw a car with no lights weaving in and out of traffic. He sped after a cop but later when he blurted out his story, the cop waved for his driver's license. The officer had clocked Moreno speeding.

Moreno was fined $35 for speeding, $25 for driving without a license, and $25 for failure to produce a license.

By JACK ALEXANDER

A super smart 2-year-old boy knew just what to do when his mother passed out on the kitchen floor — he calmly grabbed the phone and dialed Emergency 911.

"He asked us to please hurry' and then he hung up saying he had to go to the bathroom," Police Lt. Ronald Del Pra told The NEWS.

With their enhanced 911 system cops in Warren, Mich., immediately knew the address and phone number of the tot's home.

Dispatcher Jean McKay called back and the boy answered the phone.

"My name is Alex Schaefer. My mom's on the floor. ... She won't get up. She doesn't feel good."

The brainy boy then gave the dispatcher his name and what street he lived on, unaware they already had that information.

Paramedics couldn't believe their eyes when they found out they were summoned to the home by a 2-year-old boy.

"I took my mom's pulse. She still has one," Alex told them. "I looked in her ear and her brain's okay."

Sarah Schaefer was later treated at a hospital and released. She had suffered a concussion in an accident two weeks earlier.

"That mother is proud of that little boy. There's just the two of them but I'd say he's proved he's the man of the house," said Lt. Del Pra.

Mrs. Schaefer wasn't surprised by her son's presence of mind. "He was saying full sentences at 9 months. His favorite TV show is Sesame Street," she told police.

"What the boy did is totally amazing to me. I find it extraordinary," said Lt. Del Pra, who has a few surprises in store for little Alex.

"We're going to fix him so city hall in a chopper and give him a citizenship award and a few other things," he said.

Cat o' nine tails makes comeback

A judge in Barbados sentenced four crooks to lashings with a cat o' nine tails — and now he can't find any cat o' nine tails on the islands.

"I will have to see where I can get one. Maybe I will have to look to England," said Justice Elliot Belgrave.

He sentenced the four men, convicted rapists and robbers, to 20 lashes and prison terms.

Modern-day knight stabbed in brain during jousting re-enactment

By RICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

The re-creation of a 16th-century jousting tournament came to a sudden and tragic climax when an armor-clad "knight" was stabbed in the brain — by his opponent's lance!

It was a freak accident that left 24-year-old Lance Murray hovering for days on the brink of death when infection caused his brain to swell, and there is a good chance he may lose his eye.

The realistic jousting contest was one of the highlights of the (Tampa) Bay Area Renaissance Festival staged in Largo, Fla.

As several hundred spectators cheered in excited expectation, the knee-deep rusty barbelet was knocked from his horse when his opponent's 15-foot long lance struck him in the chest.

But the cheers quickly turned to gasps of horror as Murray pitched to agony on the ground. The crowd sensed immediately that something terrible had gone wrong.

"Lance was knocked off his horse by Kelly Bailey, his opponent," Festival official Scott Auld told The NEWS. "Somehow, Bailey's lance glanced off Lance's breastplate and popped open the visor on his helmet.

"The lance then pierced his face, moved his eye over and went into his brain. He's very lucky to be alive. Somebody up there was looking out for him."

Murray and Bailey are members of a touring group known as The New Riders of the Golden Age who perform in similar medieval jousting events all over the U.S.

"We've had some people get sprains, bruises and cuts," Auld said. "But this is the first major accident we've ever had.

"But Lance is doing better than we expected. We think he'll come out of this okay."

Crippled ex-President blasts kin over rape scandal

HELL-RAISIN' TED gets his ears burned by his brother.

TEDDY IS BREAKING MY HEART, SAYS JFK

. . . from secret U.S. hideaway!

Former President John F. Kennedy has broken a 28-year vow of silence to blast Ted and Patrick Kennedy and nephew William Kennedy Smith for their involvement in the Palm Beach "rape scandal" that's called the honor of the famous family into question — again!

JFK's decision to speak out against his hell-raising relatives comes eight months after The NEWS revealed that he survived an attempt on his life in Dal-

In a scathing attack from a secret location here in the U.S., he railed against the drinking, drug abuse and womanizing that's kept the Kennedys in turmoil headlines year after year since his alleged death.

He went on to criticize the "outrageous behavior" of virtually every family member who's veered from the straight and narrow, including Bobby Kennedy's son David — who overdosed on cocaine like a common street junkie in 1984.

"You will not drag this family's name through the mud while I have breath in my body to stop you," the former President warned Ted, Ted's son Patrick, and Smith through a handpicked group of newsmen on April 19. "You're making a mockery of me and everything that I stand for. You're killing my mother and you're breaking my heart.

"Don't make me do something I don't want to do. Don't make me risk my life by going public again."

The reporters who spoke with JFK, now 72, refuse to say where the meeting took place but they confirmed that the former President is "somewhere in the U.S."

They also said that he appeared to be in "a fragile state of health" and actually clutched his heart while discussing the alleged Easter rape at the family's Palm Beach estate.

A 29-year-old woman has said that Smith brutally assaulted her after a night of drinking with Patrick and Ted at the exclusive Palm Beach watering hole, Au Bar.

"I want to believe that Ted is saying more than a big misunderstanding but Ted and the boys shouldn't have put themselves in a position to be compromised in the first place," he

Creep sells crosses made of chocolate

By DICK DONOVAN

It was made for kiddies and it's been branded the sickest Easter candy on earth — a chocolate Christ on the cross that "bleeds" red jam when bitten!

The blasphemous candy, named "Sweet Jesus" and so far sold only in Australia, shows Christ in agony on the cross. It's the bizarre brainchild of 36-year-old Aussie Richard Manderson.

He launched his Christ-on-the-cross candy in time to cash in on the sale of Easter baskets filled with colored eggs, jellybeans and chocolate bunnies.

A Catholic Church spokesman in Sydney slammed Manderson, charging that the candy is merely a cynical attempt to make money from religion.

"It's irreverent and offensive . . . and an appalling exercise in bad taste," Father Brian Lucas declared.

Manderson has sold thousands of the chocolate Christ candies — at $3 each — despite the howls of protest.

FARMER Wilson Arnold: "It looked like a bald babbler."

A flock of breathless bird watchers spent four days in the bone-chilling wind and rain to catch a glimpse of an ultra-rare African bald babbler — then discovered their bald babbler was nothing but a sickly chicken!

By JOE BERGER

"What a bunch of idiots we turned out to be," groaned embarrassed bird buff Frances Hall.

"We flew 487 miles and nearly caught pneumonia hunting for this babbler — and when we finally did spot it, the damn thing started clucking at us. And now, to make matters worse, we've learned there probably isn't any such bird as a bald babbler."

The tale of the bamboozled bird watchers began when wheat farmer Wilson Arnold announced he'd spotted a super-unusual "African bald babbler" out behind his barn.

"I saw a strange-looking critter wandering around out there, so I checked it out in my big bird book," reb Wilson told a reporter in Invercargill, New Zealand.

"It was real ugly, with bald spots all over its body, and it looked to me like this rare African bird nobody had spotted in 80 years or something.

"So I put out the word that I had one of 'em here at my place — and the next thing I knew, my farm was overrun with nerdy little shortsighted bird-loving things like. You should have seen the Blankbottom murder I spotted last year in Spain."

Binoculer-toting bird lovers pressed into Invercargill from as far away as Tokyo to take a gander at Wilson's winged wonder — and they spent days huddled in the icy rain, waiting for the unique creature to show up.

"Everybody was pretty annoyed, because none of us had ever seen one of these African bald babblers before," said exasperated Akiyoshi Watanabe, president of a Japanese bird-watchers' club.

"And all the time we were camped out there waiting, this farmer was making a fortune selling us hot coffee and food and umbrellas and stuff. He even brought out some portable toilets for us, then charged us every time we used them."

Then finally, the dirty birdie put in an appearance — and bewildered bird watchers discovered it was nothing but a bulletoed barnyard biddy.

"That Wilson started yelling, 'There it is! There it is!' " recalled red-faced Australian Arnold Weese. "Suddenly our hearts beat faster and we started creeping closer.

"Then all at once we realized the thing was just a poor old chicken whose feathers had been pecked away by some other chickens. We were so disappointed we almost cried."

UFOS AND THE SPACE BROTHERS WANT YOU TO SURVIVE!

DOOMSDAY

Psychics, spiritual leaders, visionaries and UFO researchers all agree that we are living in what has been called the End Times.

- The foundation of our civilization is about to crumble.
- The present world as we know it is going to be destroyed.
- Psychic spiritual and "other-worldly" forces are about to take over.

THE TRUTH CAN NOW BE TOLD!

An in depth study recently conducted by a highly qualified UFO researcher indicates drastic changes in our daily life as well as in the shape and construction of our very planet, are imminent. This information has been channeled in at least 20 of the most highly respected contactees from other advanced beings who reside on other planets and in other dimensions. Unanimously, they agree that a global catastrophe will soon sweep over our nation as well as the rest of the world.

Appearing as the SPACE BROTHERS whom many are in contact with who is running out, the are being told the Earth is rapidly entering the "end of times" — hour for humankind. All indications are that a "time bomb of destruction" is about to go off - killing the planet of civilization as we have come to accept it. The Book of Revelations will be tomorrow's headlines of Armageddon engulfs the globe.

There are those who say a THIRD WORLD WAR is on the immediate horizon. But an ecological imbalance is now taking place, and a shifting of the North and South Poles is also, which could tip the earth out of its present orbit and cause it to spin toward the sun.

YOU CAN BE SAVED!

While utter chaos will take place all around us, all of those who have received this highly advanced, truly prophetic warning have said that the "Chosen Ones" who are ready will be saved and taken off this planet just in the nick of time.

Our special, fully illustrated report, a 96,000 word book titled PSYCHIC & UFO REVELATIONS IN THE LAST DAYS, is the most comprehensive volume ever put together on the subject. There is no other book like it as this book has been inspired from above. There are some of the important things you will learn — things you will NEED to know in order to make the transition from this physical dimension into a higher realm.

- Specific data on land changes. Find out which States will be geographically altered and the "safe" places to go to be out of immediate danger.
- A time table indicating when these events will begin to take place and the order in which they will occur.
- Exact "signs" and "wonders" to watch for which will indicate that only months are left.
- What material objects — "valuables" — you will need in order to survive, and where to obtain them.
- The day you will vanish from this planet — a mass evacuation by space ship will take place in which hundreds of flying saucers will come down out of the sky and "snatch" the worthy. What are your chances of being saved, and what can you do to make certain you are among "the chosen."

Some of those who have contributed to the valuable information include Dana Ayers, Brad and Sherry Steiger, Reese Channer, Betty Short, the spiritual group Mark Age, UFO communicator Jane Allyson, Parapsychologist Warren Peabody, and the space being known as Ashtar.

If you have ever a vague unease in UFOs, you will want to order this book. This is not just another one filled with wild claims, but this volume actually presents useful data which could change your life and help you to survive DOOMSDAY!

Heartless woman's going to the slammer!

GUILTY! Stacy Lynn Harmon faces up to 15 years in prison.

BABY DIES BECAUSE MOM UNPLUGS 'NOISY' HEART MACHINE

BABY Kayla, born premature and underweight, depended upon a lifesaving monitor to track her heart rate.

By SUSAN JIMISON

Stacy Lynn Harmon turned off her baby's lifesaving heart monitor because she was irked by the noise it made — and her defenseless infant died!

The 23-year-old woman has been convicted of negligent homicide and cruelty to a juvenile following her daughter Kayla's crib death. She faces up to 15 years in prison.

"Doctors say the infant would have survived if she was kept on the monitor," said Pam Slershee, who prosecuted the case for the District Attorney's office in Lansing, La. "The monitor was installed to alert someone if the baby stopped breathing. Then all you had to do was touch the child and she would start breathing again.

"In her trial the mother said she used it quite often during baby's first night when she slept with the infant. But we say no. When we recovered the monitor from her house it was covered with dust. We believe the baby died within three days before her death because it made too much noise."

Sound of the monitor was driving her nuts!

According to court records, Kayla was born April 19, 1990. She was premature and slightly underweight, but in good health. Because another of Stacy Harmon's four children had died of crib death, doctors said the baby boom-or-bust monitor was critical for her breathing and heart rate. But prosecutors contend that the child was allowed to develop a horrendous diaper rash and was unhooked from the monitor.

When Stacy called police May 14 after she awakened to find her daughter cold and lifeless, she was arrested.

A jury deliberated just a few hours before unanimously declaring her guilty.

This bum uses his head

GETTING AHEAD is fun to say for beggar Adi Pandit who collects a bundle from generous tourists.

By MICKEY McGUIRE

Adi Pandit does nothing but lie from morning to night on a busy sidewalk in Bombay, India, with his head buried in dirt — but it's made him the richest beggar in the world!

For quite some years, a resident of the crowded slums of squalid Bombay has shocked the rich tourists crowding the city's fine hotels by stepping over a dirt-caked human that would shame any of his fellow beggars.

One elderly British newspaper was so moved at the sight of Bhagwan Adi Abaji Pandit's display of what he could do for his hospitality she gave him a diamond-studded pin which he promptly sold for $25,000 cash!

"Tourists who see him lying there with his head buried in the dirt are flooded with great pity for him," explained a Bombay merchant.

"But his head is actually covered mostly with straw and he is in no danger of suffocating. Yet they shower him with so much money that he is today a very, very rich man.

"A man at his bank told me last year that Adi's fortune amounts to more than $22 million.

"It doesn't surprise me. I see people ruin money on him every day.

"Tourists are so gullible. If they suspect a man is a beggar they will not give him a penny. But if they think he is a holy man they will shower him with money.

"Adi is a very clever man. He knows how to play on the sympathies of the tourists. He knows that they will not give money to a beggar who is well-dressed and looks prosperous. So he lies in the dirt and pretends to be a holy man.

"Every morning, at about nine, his chauffeur brings him to the city in his Rolls-Royce. Each morning, they would have greets with very [illegible] am."

But Adi couldn't care less what others think. He knows he's found the Midas Touch, and living the life of a beggar by day and a high-living millionaire by night is just fine with him.

"We all have to earn money so we can eat," he explained. "And I just happen to eat better than most of that a

Wet towel fight puts girl in coma

A friendly towel-snapping fight after gym class ended with a teenage girl in the hospital — in a life-threatening coma.

By SCOTTY PAUL

Eve Cardwell, 14, was rushed to a hospital in Cardiff, Wales, after the horseplay horror.

"The towel hit her square on the head and she dropped to the floor immediately," said her tearful friend, Frances Aldridge.

The two girls and four other classmates rolled up their wet towels after showering and playfully snapped at each other.

Frances said Eve was laughing and having a good time until Eve bent over and got snapped in the head.

Frances said.

Other shocked classmates told police that Eve is always "clowning around" so when she slumped to the floor, they thought she was joking.

Doctors said the pressure from getting hit with the [illegible] someone getting clobbered with a hammer," said Dr. Brian Tyldesley. "Only time will tell whether she will recover."

Police have questioned witnesses and are convinced Eve's injury was an accident. They have refused to identify the girl who snapped Eve with the towel.

"Identifying her would serve no purpose," said Police Inspector Richard Mayfield. "She is heartbroken about what happened."

Why Michael Landon isn't afraid to die:

MY DAD SPOKE TO ME FROM BEYOND THE GRAVE!

Cancer-stricken TV hero Michael Landon has just months to live, say doctors, but the Highway to Heaven man has no fear — he's always believed in life after death.

And Landon got absolute proof of it when his beloved dad spoke to him at his funeral. "Ever since I can remember, I've believed in life after death," the superstar says.

"But when I heard my father's voice speaking to me at his funeral in 1959, it proved that belief in a very strong way.

"I had knelt before my father's coffin, sobbing. Suddenly I felt a soft touch brush against my shoulder. Then I heard my father's voice. He said to me, 'Don't worry, kid. It's okay. I'm fine. Everything's going to be all right.'

"I didn't mention it to anyone, but from that moment forward I knew my father was close to me. Even though his body was now still, I knew that a spiritual part of him lived on very close to me. I knew he could communicate with me, and it reinforced me," said Landon.

Now that Landon is faced with his own death due to inoperable cancer of the pancreas and liver, belief in the hereafter hasn't doused his fighting spirit.

"I think we all create our own destiny," he says.

The REAL secrets to getting a loan!

Most of what people believe can hurt your chances of getting a loan. Here two banking experts separate the myths about getting a loan from the facts.

MYTH: You must be at the same job for a long period of time to qualify for a loan.

FACT: "Job hoppers do make some lenders nervous. But, a lender will look favorably on a career advancement, even if you've changed jobs within the past six months," said Jim Kendall, a financial expert.

MYTH: Your salary is the main factor determining if you get a loan.

FACT: "A lending officer looks for the three C's — capacity to repay, character and credit worthiness," revealed Jack Shipman, a bank expert of Louisville, Ky.

"Your ability to repay a loan involves not just your salary, but also your spouse's salary, your credit history and the money you owe."

MYTH: Your best chance of getting a loan is from the institution where you have a savings account.

FACT: "Only if you're borrowing against that account," said Kendall.

MYTH: Both the very old and very young really have no chance of getting a loan.

FACT: "They have as much chance as anyone else," said Shipman. "A loan application cannot be rejected on the grounds of age."

MYTH: If one lender turns you down, every other lender will also do the same.

FACT: "If one institution turns you down, it doesn't mean you're plumb out of luck," said Kendall.

"A lender may refuse your loan application if there's something pertinent on your credit record.

"You have every right to know why your loan was refused — and you should ask." You can then act to correct any errors in your credit file.

MYTH: If you default on a loan, the lender will immediately garnish your wages or property.

FACT: "The last thing lenders want is to foreclose on a loan," said Shipman.

"Lenders are more likely to let you skip payments than to take drastic action."

BACK WITH MAMA! Granny Violet Gessler hugs her beloved invention — a rag doll vacuum cleaner cover

Granny wins $130G from big shots who stole her doll idea

By DICK DONOVAN

A feisty seamstress is $130,000 richer because she refused to let big shots waltz off with her friend Vanessa — the doll she made to cover her vacuum cleaner!

But Plymouth, Mich., granny Violet Gessler had to go court to prove she is the "mother" of Vanessa, the brainchild she conceived while cleaning her home for company in 1982.

Feisty woman cleans up with invention

"It was nothing to put the vacuum cleaner away," Violet explained, "and I suddenly thought 'If I could cover the vacuum with something attractive, I wouldn't have to keep hiding it.'"

Her brainchild was Vanessa, a hollow, 6-foot-tall rag doll with long dress and apron that fits over a vacuum cleaner handle.

"Vanessa just came to me right away," she said.

"After my company left, I sat down and made her. Later, I made 27 of them and took them to the fair. I sold out in an hour — at $25 each. I knew I had something great but not that great."

In 1990, the world-famous Hoover Company signed an agreement to market a version of the doll named Hanna Hoover.

Then Violet signed an agreement with Overseas Marketing Network Inc. to handle foreign sales.

"But 10 days after that agreement was signed, my doll was taken off the market and Overseas put their own doll out. And I went to court," said the feisty stitcher.

It took a couple of years, but a federal court jury finally decided that Violet was entitled to receive 10 percent of the $13 million Overseas made on the sale of its dolls.

"The Hoover executives treated me just fine and I'd like to get back with them," Violet told The NEWS.

"But for now, if anyone wants a Vanessa doll they have to come to her mother — and that's me."

Beauties have it made!

A good-looking chick will climb higher on the career ladder and make more money than a homely woman, even if the gorgeous doll is an airhead bimbo!

"For the working woman, beauty definitely counts," says University of Pittsburgh psychologist Irene Frieze.

Thousands pray for miracles

DÉAD CHILD THE SICK!

THE FAITHFUL, who flock to the grave of Charlene Richard leave money and roses on the headstone beside a small plaque bearing her picture.

Believers say God works through little Cajun girl who died 32 years ago!

Thousands of deathly sick and crippled people converge on tiny Richard, La., each year to pray for a miracle from a little girl — who died 32 years ago.

Since the 1960s, believers who have prayed on the grave of Charlene Richard claim she has helped put cancers into remission, healed cripples and given unexpected riches to the needy.

There are many of us, who have witnessed the power of God through Charlene, who feel the Vatican should designate her a saint," said Mrs. Alvia McConnell.

By JACK ALEXANDER

Charlene was an ordinary Cajun girl of 12 when she died of leukemia in 1959, after 11 days of agony in a Lafayette hospital.

"People have told me there was nothing great about Charlene," said a Catholic priest, the Rev. Joseph Breaux. "I think Charlene was an ordinary little girl until crisis came into her life."

Miriam Price is sure that Charlene interceded with God on behalf of her granddaughter, Nicole, who defied the odds and won a three-year battle with neuroblastoma, a deadly cancer of the nervous system.

CHARLENE was only 12 when she died of leukemia in 1959.

Nicole was already bald and weak from chemotherapy — when her babysitter left her upset with someone named Charlene.

Her family thought Nicole had an imaginary friend until Mrs. Price got a call months later from a woman who told she had been praying to Charlene to intercede with God and cure her granddaughter's leukemia. She suggested Mrs. Price do the same.

Nicole's family contacted a priest who drove them to Charlene's tomb. The priest held Nicole so that she could see Charlene's picture on her grave.

Soon after that graveside experience, Nicole's cancer went into remission.

TINY village of Richard in south central Louisiana is a

YOUNG man kneels to pray at the grave of Charisma Richard who had the same disease as Nicole didn't survive.

"We called it luck then, but now we're not so sure," Mrs. Price said.

Six months later, a new tumor appeared on Nicole's spleen and her anxious family awaited yet a weekend passing to find out if it was malignant.

Their prayer drove back to her to intercede with God on behalf of Nicole. The tumor turned out to be benign.

"I believe God performs miracles, and I know Charisma is closer to God than I am," said Mrs. Price. "Maybe she's watching over Nicole and there's not a day I haven't prayed to her and thanked her."

She visits her grandchild's headstone most days to reminisce after prayers at Cypress

The Rev. Floyd Calais, a Catholic priest in Lafayette, claims Charisma has interceded with God to help him raise money for the poor during his career.

"Whenever my heart was heavy with problems, I would go to the grave and ask her to intercede with God," said Father Calais. "God would help with my burdens, but Charisma was the go-between."

Father Calais began telling others about his experiences with Charisma in the 1990s. He believes that's why an average of 30 people a day have asked her to intercede for them.

Reports of unexplainable cures and miracles have been tears and speech in short of mouth.

The Diocese of Lafayette is documenting cases of claimed intercessions by Charisma. Three verified miracles are required for sainthood.

"Doctors can do a lot of things with the power of medicine, but you can't discount the power of prayer, either."

Guys are bigger blabbermouths than gals

Men are bigger blabbermouths than women are, says a university expert.

"While men complain about women talking too much, it's actually men who are the biggest talkers," declared Dr. Judy C. Pearson, who studied hundreds of conversations between men and women.

During a typical conversation, men talk about 55 percent of the time and women talk 45 percent of the time, she said.

"The fact that men talk more than women is directly linked to men's outright status in society," said Dr. Pearson, who is an expert of interpersonal communications.

"It seems that both men and women have the perception that men have the right to talk more."

That's because in a traditional marriage, the husband conducts most of the family's important business.

The man becomes the family spokesman and has more dealings with outside workmen, mechanics and such, than the woman does.

Even though they talk more, men get to the point more quickly, while women take a lot longer to say what they mean.

In a one-minute segment of conversation, for example, a woman will use more qualifiers, such as adjectives and adverbs, while she talks.

But a man will make more concrete points, discovered Dr. Pearson, who is the author of the book Gender and Communication.

"Men are more prone to say, 'Let's get to the point' or ask 'What's the bottom line?' in their conversations," she said. "But when women talk, they don't get to the main point but it seems like a lot of time is anticipated."

Terrified residents of a desert town are remaining indoors after deadly scorpions began raining from the sky by the thousands.

The stinging creatures invaded Ashpit, Baipt, and attacked at least 120 people. At least 12 are expected to die. Experts blame the scorpion storm on cold and rainy weather in the Saipan Desert. Followed by strong winds that blew the scorpions into town.

Ed Anger takes wife 'round the world' — at Disneyland!

I'm madder than Walt Disney in an X-rated movie at my ninny wife Thelma Jean, who pouted like a spoiled brat during our entire vacation last week.

And all because I treated her to four fun-packed days at Disney World's Epcot Center down in Florida instead of one of those pricey Caribbean cruises or a trip to Spain!

What Thelma Jean can't get through that airhead of hers is that you can visit all those foreign countries at Epcot Center and never set foot outside the U.S.A.

It's just like Walt put up with a bunch of greasy Italian shmoes on some filthy cruiseship where they jabber in pidgin English all day and have a pizza joint every 10 feet.

Even the Chinese exhibit at Epcot is clean as a whistle and NOBODY runs around like a chicken with its head cut off saying "Ho sally" all the time.

In fact, you only have to put up with a couple of Chinese guys because that's all they have working there.

Ditto for the Spain and England exhibits. And not only that, you don't have to visit any undesirable countries like France if you don't want to. Spend a couple of days at Paris and you'll know why the Germans REALLY got the hell out of there at the end of World War 2. The only time it didn't smell terrible was when there were no Frenchmen around.

At Epcot you can take a trip around the world and never see a foreigner. And let's face it, most people in foreign countries are ugly. I don't know why, but it's a proven fact.

Take England, for instance. An English twenty queues to shout at cars as a Christian sport, for crying out loud.

And English men aren't much better.

There lumpys all look like Winston Churchill. For any women and small kids that sight is enough to make them puke.

And speaking of money, I saved a bundle to boot by taking Thelma Jean to Epcot instead of a real foreign country.

So the ol' lady can pitch all the kinky fits she wants, a trip around the world at Disneyland is the only way to fly.

How to help your pet beat the heat

The summer weather is here, but you can help your pet beat the heat by following tips from experts.

Dogs and cats are very sensitive to stifling hot weather and as they need special care.

Here's how to protect your pooch from overheating.

● On hot days, walk your dog only early in the morning or in the cool of the evening.

● Leave out twice as many water bowls, or use a larger bowl.

● If your dog is locked in the house all day, make sure cage windows are open or leave the air conditioner on.

● When your pooch is outside, leave out a child's wading pool filled with cold tap water. Some dogs love to wade occasionally.

● Don't have your dog jog with you in hot weather, wait for cool evenings.

● Playing "fetch" with sticks or balls in hot weather is dangerous. Your dog might keep on playing to please you, but could overheat in the same time.

● Pay extra attention to keeping your dog's coat well-groomed. That will prevent matting, which makes the hair act as a blanket, trapping heat.

● Cool your dog down with a hose as long as he's not frightened by it.

● Feed your dog light, easy-to-digest meals in hot weather.

● Make sure your dog has shade available at all times.

Cats are better able than dogs to protect themselves in hot weather. By licking their own coats they wet down their skin and allow the evaporation to cool them off.

But cats do need shade and constant supplies of fresh water in hot weather, along with ventilation. Just as dogs do. And cat and dog owners should also be on the lookout for fleas.

In addition, like dogs, cats should be fed light, moist meals in hot weather. And if your pet appears to be suffering from heat prostration, dampen it with cold tap water and take it to a veterinarian.

Either pets, such as mice, birds, guinea pigs and gerbils, are not at risk in hot weather as long as they have fresh water, are out of direct sunlight and in a cage with lots of fresh air circulation.

Guy raped at gunpoint — by three gals

Philadelphia cops are looking for three hardcore young gals who raped a 27-year-old male after they'd robbed and raped him at gunpoint.

The unsuspecting fellow was walking home on the night after the women — wearing dresses and in their 20s — offered him a ride.

When he got into their car, the lady ladies drove him to a secluded spot, pulled out a handgun, ordered him to take off his clothes and attacked him, lawmen said.

She's an alley cat all week but a church mouse on Sunday!

Dear Bewildered Mom in Winslow: I don't care if the kid is three — if he used lipstick on my house I'd blister his butt!

Dear Professor in College Park: If you're so bright, husband, why aren't you rich?

Dear Anxious Seeker in Enid: Once a month is plenty for a geezer like you!

Dear Worried Nymphet in Elkhart: You should have thought about that before you skipped the last 83 days of school!

Dear Perfume Hunter in Fall River: Karate doesn't help me. I carry a gun!

Dear Smiling Girl in Salt City: If that's the case, buy a bigger bra!

Dear Angry Serviceman in N.Y.: Drop dead!

Dear Dotti: Maybe you can explain something to me. My wife of six years runs around with other men and boozes it up all hours of the day and night. She all but abandoned our three children and me. And yet she's up bright and early every Sunday morning, ready to go to church.

What gives, Dotti? Why does my wife act like a heathen six days a week and become an angel the seventh? — Wondering in Roseville

Dear Wondering: The answer to your question is in the dictionary — see "hypocrite".

My filthy-rich parents really treat me like dirt

Dear Dotti: My parents are filthy rich but when it comes to spending money on me you'd think they were living in the poorhouse. I wanted a BMW for my 16th birthday, for example, but all I got was a crummy little scrapbook. Now, dearie, Dotti's took away my gold card for a week and because I have a few friends in New York for dinner and dancing while he and Mom were out of town.

Why are my parents so stingy, Dotti? — Priscilla in D.C.

Dear Priscilla: You might be way, way off the pendulum, and you have to be good. A lot of kids would give anything for a charming little grandma and some perfect actually care for PEARS to feature a trip to New York. As far as I'm concerned you're definitely shoulda. I gave you anything — but the insurance end of a paddle!

I'm a lonely psycho killer who wants some pen pals

Dear Dotti: I'm in prison for rape and murder and desperately need some pen pals to pass the hopelessness of life behind bars. I know that millions of people read your column every week and was wondering if you'd print my address so that you girls can write. I promise decent pen pals. Thanks. — Lonely in California

Dear Lonely: I wouldn't help a scumbag like you if my life depended on it. Do as many pen pals as you — go die!

Why most beautiful gals wear ugly underwear?

Dear Dotti: Why do pretty girls wear ugly-looking underwear? It's bad enough seeing bifid fingers, bulges and black panties in the movies. It makes me want to throw up! — F.L. in Spartanburg

Dear F.L.: Women wear bulges, black panties and bikinis because they like them — and aren't the least bit interested in impressing a dead from the waist-down buffoon like you!

It's time to put those pansies in their place

Dear Dotti: Whatever happened to good tough, no-nonsense gay-bashing attitudes? I thought you were the one person in the newspaper world we could count on to put homosexuals in their place! — Charlene in Missouri

Dear Charlene: A gay basher is a person who attacks homosexuals for no good reason whatsoever, glad I'm NEVER done that in my column. When an athlete gay writes I put him in his place just as I do others who are athletic heterosexual writers!

Dear Dotti will answer your letters — and put a little in it. Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33464.

Dear Countess: This might sound crazy but every word of it is true. A voodoo priest I have thinks I had an affair with his wife and put his revenge by stealing my soul.

Please help me, Countess, before it's too late. I feel like the living dead and if something happens to me before I get my soul back, there's no telling what will happen to me in the afterlife. — Terrified in Baltimore

Dear Terrified: This so-called "voodoo priest" you speak of doesn't have the knowledge or power to steal souls and most certainly doesn't have power in the future world or that to other kinds of love, however. It's up a road to ruin with this evil person — even threatened your life like you — always apply here!

STILL GOING STRONG: Newly-wed Villy Poulsen, 28, gives his 72-year-old wife Anne Marie a big, affectionate cuddle.

She's 72 — & he's 28!

People said it wouldn't last, but Villy Poulsen, 28, and his 72-year-old wife Anne Marie are still going strong on the ninth anniversary of their marriage.

"Our love for each other grows every day!" declared Villy, a Danish auto mechanic who married the twice-widowed Anne Marie in April 1962.

Says Anne Marie, "When does it matter that I'm 44 years older than him when we love each other so very much?"

The happy couple's incredible story began when Villy had a flat tire outside Anne Marie's house in Outer Lindet, Denmark.

"When I saw him standing there, it was love at first sight," says Anne Marie. "My heart turned to water. I thought, 'This is the man for me!'

"I screwed up my courage and asked him in for a cup of coffee. We just sat there and chatted for hours."

Villy revealed, "I saw right away that she was the woman for me. Her lively smile, her sense of humor and the happy gleam in her eyes were irresistible!"

The very next day Villy was back at Anne Marie's doorstep with a bouquet of flowers and a box of chocolates.

"Then I asked her to go out with me after work," said Anne Marie. "I looked forward to his visits. I never thought about how much younger he was. He was the man I was losing my heart to."

Finally, Villy popped the question. And she agreed so much I thought she'd blow me out the window!"

And Anne Marie recalled, "Some people were shocked at first, but not families—such as us.

"Even though I am old enough to be Villy's grandmother, he gives me a taste of youth again. He makes me feel like a 16-year-old!"

Villy added, "I get angry when some people say I married Anne Marie for her money. She has some capital, but I'm not exactly very broke, either. We never talk about money. Every week I give my paycheck to her.

"I never think of her as being old. She's my wife.

"She's everything I always wanted a woman to be. She's a perfect lover.

"People said it wouldn't last — but if I hadn't had that fire outside her house, I never would have found true happiness!"

"She is everything I want a wife to be!"

Man swallows dentist's drill

Nervous patient (Neal) Ralston opened his mouth wide for the dentist, gulped once in terror — and swallowed the dentist's drill.

Ralston, 32, was taken to a hospital in Oslo, Norway, where doctors decided to let nature take its course as far as the 1½-inch drill was concerned.

"This is the first time I've ever heard — much less seen — anything like this happen," said Dr. Eric Rubsen. "And of course I was very surprised."

Ralston was having a tooth filled when the drill slipped from the dentist's hand and fell into his mouth.

"I felt a sharp pain in my throat," he said. "I thought I'd been stabbed. I tried to cough it up, but it was gone."

Ralston was given a local anesthetic and then X-rayed. The drill was found in his stomach.

Doctors decided to wait for the drill to pass naturally through his system. Ralston was released from the hospital after a week.

"I'm glad it's over," he said. "I'm sure I'll be able to pass the drill in a few days."

JET DROPS PEE-PEE ICICLE ON SHOCKED COUPLE!

5-foot chunk rips open roof of N.Y. apartment

A couple were quietly watching television when a chunk of frozen urine from a high-flying jet ripped a foot-square hole in the roof of their apartment.

"I jumped halfway across the floor," said Joanne Cieslak who thought a bomb had landed on her Buffalo, N.Y. apartment.

"We were watching a cops show on television, and I was wondering who was trying to blow us up," she said.

Police believe a 5-foot piece of frozen urine fell from the waste compartment of a commercial jet passing overhead.

"There doesn't seem to be another explanation," said Police Lt. Tom Masterson.

"We found nothing else at the scene that could punch that size of a hole in the roof," he said.

Police are still checking with area airports to find out if any commercial jets were flying high overhead when the roof was damaged about 10 p.m.

"If a chunk of ice fell from a plane flying at 30,000 to 35,000 feet, it would be traveling at a terrific speed when it hit the roof," said one officer. "Kind of like a bullet." The Cieslaks said cracks extended out several feet in different directions from the hole. The tattered roof has already been repaired.

"It just fell from the sky," said Gary Cieslak. "You don't see why it actually hurts. Everything is melted."

Chinese use hefty hogs as baby-sitters!

LOYAL pigs are quite safe with the parent's kids but fierce with intruders.

They hide at this photo if you dare, but the parents of these three young girls don't have to worry about kidnappers — not while they're napping on the family's 450-pound "guard pig."

By DICK DONOVAN

Despite all of China's shocking tales of abductions, poor parents — and there are many of them — still get a good price by selling their daughters into prosperous households that are desirous of the help provided by the baby workers to help protect their children.

Pigs are highly intelligent creatures, more so than are dogs, and they are quite protective of their owners' children, calls the children, declared Chang Lee Shen, a Peoples Party neighborhood leader in Shanghai.

"A charging one of these size would be very difficult to stop and they can bite off a head; even a kidnapper wants to do without much difficulty. Not counted with a guard pig."

While the prized pigs are highly successful in protecting the homes and children of their owners, not many Chinese families ever have enough money to buy one.

But they do have one big advantage in addition to their unflinching loyalty — they eat a lot less to feed than dogs.

How to tell if someone is secretly attracted to you!

By observing subtle, unspoken "love signals" you can tell when someone is secretly interested in you, an expert reveals.

Dr. David Givens, who spent four years researching in bars, discos and other meeting places for his book Love Signals, discloses some of the unconscious ways people express interest.

● Tilting the head — "When you make eye contact with an unfamiliar person and they tilt their head to the side, it means they're probably secretly interested in you," explained Dr. Givens, an anthropologist.

● Mirroring — If a person sitting near you unknowingly imitates you — leaning back when you lean back, for instance — you can safely assume there's an interest in you.

● Eyes — "A person might glance off to those left. Then sweep their eyes across your face and gaze off to their right, repeating the movement without settling their gaze on you.

● Exaggerated gestures — Rather than a simple gesture, a person who'd like to catch your eye might make a very elaborate gesture instead.

"For example, instead of a quick glance at her watch a woman may unnecessarily bare arm, then deliberately bring the watch back to her face and tilt her head over to read the dial," said Dr. Givens.

● Hands between the knees — "This is a typical posture men take when they're speaking with women they like. The man will lean forward in his chair, rest his forearms on his knees and clasp his hands between his knees, looking like a thinking third grader stretching forward his pointy teacher."

● Lowered lids — "In this signal, the other person's eyebrows just barely rise, as if the lifting takes every last ounce of their energy.

"Then face goes slack and their lower jaw drops, but their lips remain sealed so that the bottom half of the face looks heavy."

CANNIBAL WOMEN KILL SEX FIEND WITH POISON ARROWS!

By MICKEY McGUIRE

Outraged mothers living in a cannibal jungle village in Borneo tied a naked young virgin to a tree — to lure a kill-crazy teenage sex fiend to his long-overdue death!

When found the next morning, the unidentified boy's corpse bore more than 100 spear and knife wounds and the six poison-tipped arrows that finally snuffed out his worthless life.

"The boy took the place of our daughters," explained Dyak chieftain Kapit Lenjau said. "The mothers showed no mercy when they got their hands on the fiend who had raped and murdered their daughters."

The boy was caught right after he had raped and murdered 23 innocent young girls, many of them not even 10 years old.

After he was dead the mothers hacked out his heart and liver and left them in front of the hut where the girls' parents lived. There's no doubt that he was completely insane, said Penghulu.

Although the missionaries and district authorities are pretty certain they know who the vengeful mothers are it's extremely unlikely that any official action will be taken against them.

"We only did what had to be done to save our daughters from that dead killer," declared one mother whose 13-year-old daughter was raped and then speared by the sadistic young killer.

OUTRAGED jungle women of a Borneo killer tribe exact a grisly revenge on the sexual rapist who murdered their daughters. The corpse the next day still pierced with a few spears and arrows, was like a human pin cushion.

SEX-CHANGE PILOT BANNED FROM THE COCKPIT

Staff writer

Heroic pilot Ian Livingstone was a battle-hardened air force ace with 27 years of flying, but his career went into a tailspin — after he became a she.

"Now I'm a woman no one wants to know," said the veteran pilot, who has been booted out of jobs since a $5,000 sex-swap operation changed him into Kristina, a shapely 36-27-36 blonde.

"I'm hugely qualified, but the powers that be seem to look on me as a pervert, and they've effectively barred me from the air," said Kristina, 44, of London, England.

Kristina was a woman trapped in a man's body during her long flying career with the Royal Air Force and on a pilot flying dangerous bombing missions with the Rhodesian Air Force.

"I knew from childhood some cruel trick of nature had been played on me," said the ex-fighter ace who is not only a woman, but a transsexual as well.

Kristina was married when she was a he and has an 18-year-old daughter.

"We had a normal sex life because my body still had male organs," she said.

She fought hard to make the marriage work, but it ended in divorce. Kristina is still friends with her ex-wife, Mary.

Her stint with the Rhodesian Air Force was a desperate bid to prove her masculinity.

"I dropped napalm, fired rockets, blew up a bridge and killed people," said Kristina, who as Ian Livingstone was twice awarded for bravery.

The sex-change operation converted pilot Ian into a commercial jet pilot for Britannia Airways.

"On my 40th birthday I stepped out one day dear as a blonde wig, red dress and high heels," Kristina said. "It all felt so natural. I've lived as a woman ever since."

The blonde bombshell eventually lost her job with Britannia after seven years and has been turned down for more than 30 jobs.

"I seem to be an alien," Kristina said. "I'm asking the Equal Opportunities Commission to look into me as a test case."

But Kristina has no regrets. She is just fine. She has a steady boyfriend and enjoys being attractive to men.

"It is a lot of fun wearing skirts and getting whistled at by the guys."

DOUBLE YOUR WEIGHT LOSS

THE EASY WAY — WITH A FRIEND'S HELP!

Help! That's the first thing you should think of when you launch yourself on a diet that tests your willpower.

When the going gets tough, turn to your spouse, a close friend or co-worker for active support — and you'll be amazed at how much easier it is to stick to your diet and lose weight.

Result: a leaner, happier and healthier you to enjoy.

In a recent study that supported Dr Kelly Brownell, co-author of The Partnership Diet program, found that dieters who had help from partners lost an incredible triple as much weight as those who didn't.

The first step is to find a suitable partner — someone you can trust and respect. Once you've found a partner, you're ready to go.

DIETER'S ROLE

- Make specific helpful suggestions to your partner, such as, "It's better when you don't snack in front of me."
- Reinforce your partner's good habits by showing appreciation for anything he or she does to help you stick to your program.
- Eat with your partner whenever possible.
- Learn to leave food on your plate. Throw away scraps immediately.
- Eat at the same time every day in the same place, and make sure you're sitting and eating slowly. No reading or watching TV.
- Keep a calorie diary of everything you eat. If you're female try not to go over 1,200 calories a day. Men should limit their intake to 1,200 calories.

PARTNER'S ROLE

- Be prepared to give of your time and act as many meals as possible with the dieter.
- Give compliments when they are deserved, such as, "That's great. You're really sticking with it!"
- Whenever possible do the food shopping yourself and serve the meals yourself so portions will not be too big and the dieter's reliance with food will be minimal.
- Provide a model of good eating habits. This reminds the dieter to do the same and shows you're committed.
- Help the dieter resist temptation by providing lively conversation during meals.

8 things you should never [illegible]

When you fill out a job application, what you leave out is often more important than what you include.

Here are comments no one should ever place on an application, according to top job recruiter Robert Half:

- "I'm not particular about the kind of work I do. I just want something that pays me enough to get by."

An employer is likely to think that the applicant will be disinterested in her job.

- "Money isn't important to me."

If an applicant doesn't care about money, he probably won't care about being hired, either.

- "My last employer was very disorganized." Criticizing your former boss will only lead a prospective employer to think you'd someday publicly criticize him, too.

- "I prefer informality" or "I prefer writing my own pass."

These comments show you to be a nonconformist or someone likely to create problems.

- "I am impatient with publishing over minor details."

"I am stubborn on matters of principle."

Many would-be employers will see this person as a demanding individual who will refuse to take criticism.

- "I dislike claustrophobic-type Dieting, inefficient systems and Republicans."

Such philosophies have no place in the workplace — and might offend the interviewer.

- "... As the owners of the job discuss in the interview of professors, an obviously candid name who gave the short-sentence of exaggerating individuals declare ..." Don't try to impress your prospective boss with big words you'll be sorry.

- "I apply for position a better candidate if you don't set up an interview for me as soon as possible." Being overbearing or arrogant can irritate all the people reading your application.

Gal drivers are worse than men

An amazing new study proves it — lady drivers are worse than men!

"Women consistently out-perform in tests behind the wheel," declared Lisa Dorn, a psychologist at Aston University in Birmingham, England.

"The problem is a lack of spatial ability, and also that women are easily distracted. This means that they are more likely to get lost while driving and have accidents than men."

The report resulted her conclusions after guiding 300 men and women through a series of tests, news reports said.

CRUEL KIDS SELL CANCER MOM'S PAIN PILLS TO DOPE FIENDS!

Two heartless kids stole their mom's expensive medications and sold it to drug addicts — so they could live it up on the proceeds.

Danielle and Robert Moore took the morphine intended to ease the agony of dying Mary Moore's last days, leaving her in final three weeks of her life only a watered-down supply.

The 20-year-old basement's from Southampton, England, was in excruciating pain as the result of bone cancer that had spread throughout her body.

"You will live with that on your conscience for the rest of your lives," said angry Judge Robin Hiller, who sentenced the pair to 12 months on probation for theft and supplying drugs.

Astonishing to court authorities, Mary Moore was discharged from the hospital with unbearable cancer and sent home to die. She was given a large supply of painkilling medication to make her last hours bearable — but her own children put her through hell.

Danielle, 21, and Robert, 24, stole their mother's medications and hatched a plan to sell it on the streets for cash. Their mother, tortured by body-wracking pain, died within a few weeks. Meanwhile, police learned that the brother and sister were selling drugs and arrested them. During the investigation, the awful truth about their crime was revealed.

After their court appearance, the brother and sister hid out at their home. local papers said. They refused to comment on their actions when reporters called.

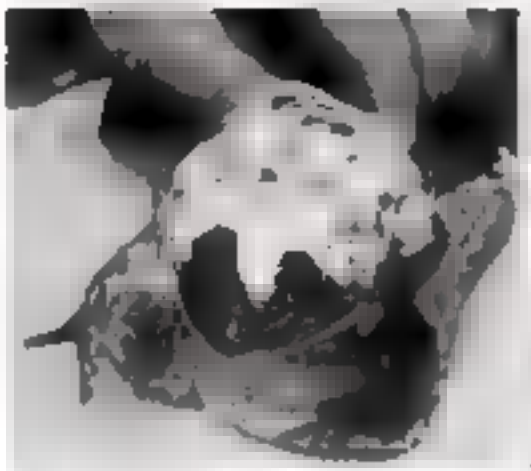
Gimme a 'ribbit' on rye — with extra mayo!



FOR THE HEARTY APPETITE Most folks opt past the legs of a frog, but Georgia glutton Rob Great likes 'em whole. Add mustard and mayo for a little zip.

YUMMY Rob's mouth waters with anticipation as he eyes his next victim.

By LAUREL SOWIE

Beefy sawbuck Rob Great can put away a panful of meat and potatoes when he wants to. But when roly-poly Rob is looking for a special treat, he skips the steak and spuds — and wolfs down a live frog sandwich!

Nutty trucker snacks on live frog sandwiches!

"People are quick to say, 'Oh, yuck!' when they see me eating one of these things," said the steel-stomached trucker, wiping a frog-in-rye. "But they shouldn't knock it if they haven't tried it.

"They just don't know how good a live frog can taste with a little mayo, a little mustard ... maybe a little lettuce tossed in."

Rugged Rob, 35, says he's been eating down bullfrogs since he was a boy — and loving every scrumptious bite.

"I must have been about 10 when I stuck my first frog," the Georgia good ol' boy told a reporter in Macon. "While the other kids used them for bait, I ate mine — and I thought it was delicious.

"After that I was always out sticking frogs and eating 'em raw.

"I didn't care what kind of frog it was. Big ones, little ones. I'd eat 'em all.

"People told me it was disgusting, especially when they watched me eat a live one," he said.

"But the live ones always tasted a lot better to me than the dead ones for some reason."

Frog-gobbling Rob recalled his first sneaker sandwich when he was a sophomore in high school — and picked up a nifty 10 bucks in the process.

"We were having our Fourth of July picnic or something and in the sticks when I got me a frog and bet the kids I'd eat it in a sandwich," he recalled.

"There was a few of my buddies who put their money [illegible] I took all the bellies out of a bullfrog sandwich and put that frog in there and I bumped it right down.

"Some of the girls didn't eat anything for the rest of the day. But I thought it was the best sandwich I ever had."

And the bearded bachelor's been feasting on frog sandwiches ever since.

"Frog doggies, frog burgers or just a plain old frog-on-white, they're all absolutely, positively wonderful," gushed ravenous Rob.

"People keep telling me I could get sick from eating raw frogs, but I don't really care. For something this delicious, it's worth the risk."

OPEN WIDE! These jumbo bullfrog sandwiches definitely aren't for dainty eaters

Miraculous 'Flying Friar'

St. Joseph of Cupertino, a 17th-century priest, was famed as "the Flying Friar" because of his astounding ability to float around in the air like a human balloon.

His amazing feats were witnessed by scores of people, including Pope Urban VIII. He was born Giuseppe Desa in Italy on June 17, 1603, under circumstances remarkably similar to those surrounding the birth of Christ.

Giuseppe's father, a poor carpenter, was forced to leave town with his pregnant wife when he was harassed by creditors, and Giuseppe was born in a stable. As a boy he spent all his time praying, and at age 8 he even built a small altar as a corner of his home.

BOARING SAINT Father Desa's amazing feat was captured in this painting.

At the age of 22, Giuseppe was accepted into the Franciscan order and on March 28, 1628, he was ordained as a priest and sent on a small parish where his miraculous flights began to occur. The first time it happened, he was praying in church when he suddenly sailed into the air with a shriek of ecstasy and landed on the altar.

And then, giving another shout of joy, he flew back to [illegible] where he had been praying. World of his amazing feats [illegible] powers reached Rome, and Pope Urban VIII summoned the young priest to the Vatican. [illegible]

Giuseppe's fame quickly spread beyond Italy and pilgrims from other countries flocked to his church to see him fly. He was floated in the air for 30 yards, hovering [illegible] without being burned.

On his deathbed in September 1663, Giuseppe, then 60 years old, fell into a trance and floated gently to the steps of a chapel. He died the next day.

Would you trust your child to this molester?

Convicted sex creep opens day care center for kids!

DISGUSTING Garry Rhinebrow assaulted a 6-year-old boy and says he wants to "save" the other children.

BY JACK ALEXANDER

A man who sexually assaulted a 6-year-old boy has opened a child-care center — and there's nothing anybody can do about it.

Garry Rhinebrow was convicted two years ago of fondling the little boy during a back yard sleep-out in a tent.

He was placed on two years probation and told not to be alone with anyone under the age of 16. But Rhinebrow, 36, has angered probation officers and others with his new business venture.

"Given the nature of his previous offense, this very much disturbs me," said Dennis Cox, his former probation officer in Kitchener, Ontario.

A loophole in Canadian law allows anyone to open a child-care center without a license, providing they care for fewer than six children.

"Our people let it be known loud and clear that we don't agree with the licensing law, but the sad fact is there is no law to prevent what Rhinebrow is doing," said Don Varga of the probation department.

Rhinebrow has maintained he is innocent of the sexual assault and is still trying to appeal his conviction.

After being out of work for six months after his conviction, Rhinebrow spent about $600 altering a three-unit apartment building he owns in Kitchener to accommodate his day care center.

He has installed a fence around the property and has stocked the center with toys, books and children's products.

A month after he opened, Rhinebrow had no customers.

"Since there is a loophole in the law, we're hoping that word of mouth will enable us to keep customers away from this door," said Elizabeth Marsh of the Ministry of Community and Social Services.

"Nobody is comfortable with a man like that running a child-care center, but the law is the law," she said.

YOU BE THE JUDGE

Outraged readers who want to unload on to Canadian lawmakers for allowing convicted child molestors like Garry Rhinebrow to operate child care centers and come in contact with children should write to Payback Law, c/o Weekly World News, 600 So. East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462. We'll see that your letters are sent to Canadian officials.

Some weird facts about your body

You are taller in the morning because your height may increase by as much as a third of an inch while you sleep. The spongelike discs between your vertebrae are filled with liquid. During your waking hours this liquid is squeezed out from between the stacked discs. While you sleep, the liquid is absorbed.

This is one of several weird facts most folks may not know about their bodies, says Longevity magazine in filling a page from Ken Harris' book, The Emperor Who Ate the Bible and Other Strange Facts.

Here's another: It takes only 90 seconds for a drop of blood to circulate through your body.

It's impossible to catch a cold on the far northern or winter at the North Pole because it is the cold that no disease-causing microorganisms can survive.

The skin is the largest organ and the butt is the largest muscle in the body.

If you're a pack-a-day cigarette smoker, you consume 600 milligrams of nicotine a week. That would be enough to cause instant death if taken in one dose.

mom is dying — and she blames this leaking breast implant

By SUSAN JAMISON
Daily writer

MY BOOB JOB IS KILLING ME!

. . . and millions of other women are at risk, too

Mother-of-eight Marie Walsh says she's dying of a horrible disease — and she blames it on her breast implants!

The Laguna Hills, Calif., woman says her [redacted] job is killing her and she's warning the [redacted] American women who have implants that the same may happen to them.

"I WANT to ban breast implants," says Marie Walsh. "Being flat is better than risking your health."

"Doctors aren't informing people of the risks," says Marie, 45. "The silicone in the implants can leak into the body, causing diseases of the immune system. People get rheumatoid arthritis, scleroderma and lupus.

"In my case it's affected my lower intestines and my liver is enlarged. I have chronic lymph and kidney disease. I'm all puffed up and I have to have cortisone so I can function. My doctor says the condition is progressive and that I may have silica all through my body. He says I'll either get liver disease or cancer."

Marie's ordeal began in 1982 eleven years after doctors gave her an implant to correct a deformed breast. She started suffering from night sweats, hair loss, mysterious rashes and muscle aches. She visited doctor after doctor, clinic after clinic, but no one could diagnose her illness.

Finally Marie woke up one morning with her nightgown plastered to her body and silicone gel from her left breast oozing everywhere. Her breast implant had ruptured, spilling its contents and spreading throughout her body. Doctors told her it was a miracle she survived the ordeal — and replaced her implant.

But over the next nine years, her problems continued and doctors finally realized it was silicone leaking from her implant that was causing her failing health. Last year she had her implant removed again but by that time her immune system had been permanently crippled, she says.

Doctors have told her she will eventually die from the effects of the silicone.

Marie sued the manufacturer of her defective implant and wound up with an $80,000 settlement. But she was so upset by her ordeal that she founded a group to inform plant recipients who are already ill and all women that being flat is better than risking your health. "I want to ban breast implants and offer support to implants," Marie said. "And I want to[illegible]

Revenge of the nude bank exec!

Woman wins $225G from sneaky ex-hubby after he publishes her naked pic!

By JOI BERGER

Skipets banker Susan Hudson got the shock of her life when she opened the pages of a country girlie magazine — and found her nude photo staring back at her!

But the trim lady got sweet revenge when she sued her ex-hubby for sending in the steamy snapshot — and outraged jurors awarded her a whopping $225,000.

Attorney Jeff Shore said jilted Jim Hudson, 30, slapped Susan's photo in readers' mailbag — then sent copies of the magazine to her mother and her boss — purely for spite.

"He is just a plain mean, petty, rotten person," said the Marietta, Ga., lawyer. The bizarre story began in 1985, when Susan's picture appeared in Gallery's "Girl Next Door Auditions Erotic Photo Contest."

The photo showed the bank boss seductively lounging naked on a raft in her backyard swimming pool.

The red-faced lady was so startled when a copy of the magazine landed on her boss' desk that she eventually quit her job, her attorney said.

"Everywhere she turned, she just didn't know who had seen that picture and who hadn't," he said.

Shocked Susan, now 30 and remarried, sued her ex for $5 million, charging he invaded her privacy when he submitted the snapshot without her permission.

The embarrassed banker said she'd allowed her husband to take more than 100 nude snapshots of her during their marriage, but she insisted they were intended for his eyes only.

"Those photos were very, very private," she testified. "I did it in the trust of a marriage."

Gordon admitted sending in the picture and forging Susan's signature on the release form allowing Gallery to publish it.

"This is the woman I love," the businessman told jurors.

Hesitate and you could lose out this week. Be flexible so that you can jump on any opportunity that comes by.

A money-making project could be proposed by someone you don't know very well. This could be a better deal than it sounds at first.

You must offer trust if you expect to be treated, and this works to your favor this time. Let your romantic feelings out and you may just find that they'll be returned twice over.

If your birthday is this week . . .

Whatever you go for this year should end in success.

A high energy level should give you what it takes to tackle anything that comes your way.

Set some financial goals. Future security is worth the sacrifices you might have to make right now.

Your natural charm should make loved ones happy and turn your superiors into exciting new friends. Your confidence should draw people to you.

Luck and love should be with you all

Light-fingered judge's lame [redacted] for shoplifting:

I stole because I had a rash and my toilet leaked!

By JACK ALEXANDER

A troubled judge gave 19 reasons why she was under stress when she shoplifted a couple of $39.99 watches from a department store — but she was found guilty anyway.

GUILTY. Judge Powers

Florence S. Powers of Ewing, N.J., an administrative law judge, was found guilty and fined $500 by Superior Court Judge Samuel Lenox Jr., but she was allowed to keep her $70,150-a-year job.

Clinical psychologist Jan Carl Grossman testified on her behalf, listing 19 reasons for her stress and the forgetfulness it may have caused when she stole the watches.

Here are the 19 reasons:

- She hurt her back, neck and knees in a 7-car accident. She was out of work for a week and had to shop for a new car.
- She got a traffic ticket as a result of the accident.
- She was behind in her work after sick leave.
- She feared she had breast cancer and had been treated for renal cancer (she doesn't have either).
- She had to arrange her family's Christmas and Hanukkah [illegible]
- Her husband, David, has kidney stones.
- He also has asthma, and a breathing machine had to be installed in the bedroom.
- She gets hemorrhoids and flushes.
- She suffered an "enraged-by" vaginal itch.
- A bad rash left ugly splotches on her skin.
- She smoked dental floss [illegible]
- Her son, Jonathan, 8, had to start using a breathing machine for asthma.
- She had to organize her [illegible] wedding shower, which had to be returned [illegible]
- She was living in self-[illegible]
- Her mother and aunt were [illegible]
- She had to throw a Thanksgiving dinner for 30 relatives.
- She was selling the [illegible] who improperly elevated her allegiance.
- She had begun [illegible]
- She was trying to sell her house without an agent.
- A toilet in her house would not stop flushing.

Her lawyer, Robert P. Hagedorn, argued that Judge Powers had no memory of how one of the watches made its way into her coat pocket, and another pair into her purse.

Lousy dad better than no dad, claims expert

No matter how bad a dad he is, he's better for his kids than no dad at all, a top psychiatrist says.

He says a father-son relationship is crucial in the development of healthy boys and that when dad leaves the family normal development is impossible.

"The father-son relationship is the most important relationship in determining how much will be as parents and in how hands," says Frank Pittman, an Atlanta family therapist and author who thinks women are too quick to divorce their husbands and leave their kids fatherless. "Dads have to be pretty bad to be worse than no father at all."

"Therapists and marriage counselors are quite tempted to give up on guys, especially if they have an affair. What's needed is for therapists to understand emotionally well enough to develop some sense of tolerance for all these ultimately manipulative things men do from time to time."

History's greatest glutton

Around the turn of the century, millionaire Diamond Jim Brady became famous as America's greatest glutton — because he could easily gobble down as much as 20,000 calories a day!

Even back then, the 300-pound millionaire's ravenous appetite cost him a whopping $1,000 a day.

People loved to read about Diamond Jim's eating habits so much newspapers used to assign reporters to cover his meals.

And George Rector, a leading restaurateur of the time, said that Diamond Jim "was the best 25 customers I ever had."

Here's what the big guy shoveled away on one day — Aug. 17, 1900:

Breakfast — Brady started off with a bowl of oatmeal, drowned two eggs, one slice of corn bread, two muffins, two pancakes, two pork chops, a plate of fried potatoes and a steak. He washed it all down with a gallon of fruit juice.

Midmorning Snack — Brady nibbled 30 raw oysters.

Lunch — A half-dozen oysters led off this meal, followed by two crabs, two lobsters, roast beef, salad, one whole apple pie, one whole cherry pie and four glasses of juice.

Dinner — Brady really got down to business for his main meal. After an appetizer of three dozen raw oysters, he ate six crabs, two bowls of turtle soup, six lobsters, two whole two-pound turkeys, a whole canvasback duck, a whole prime ribs of beef, a whole saddle of mutton, a whole calf's head, a whole boiled ham, a whole roast goose, a whole roast pig, a whole roast turkey, a whole roast duck, a whole roast chicken, a whole roast pheasant, a whole roast partridge, a whole roast quail, a whole roast woodcock, a whole roast snipe, a whole roast plover, a whole roast grouse, a whole roast rabbit, a whole roast squirrel, a whole roast opossum, a whole roast raccoon, a whole roast armadillo, a whole roast alligator, a whole roast crocodile, a whole roast elephant, a whole roast hippopotamus, a whole roast rhinoceros, a whole roast giraffe, a whole roast camel, a whole roast dromedary, a whole roast ostrich, a whole roast emu, a whole roast cassowary, a whole roast kiwi, a whole roast moa, a whole roast dodo, a whole roast great auk, a whole roast passenger pigeon, a whole roast Carolina parakeet, a whole roast ivory-billed woodpecker, a whole roast Labrador duck, a whole roast heath hen, a whole roast Eskimo curlew, a whole roast Bachman's warbler, a whole roast Bewick's wren, a whole roast Kirtland's warbler, a whole roast Hooker's sea lion, a whole roast Steller's sea cow, a whole roast Caribbean monk seal, a whole roast Japanese sea otter, a whole roast Atlantic gray whale, a whole roast Pacific gray whale, a whole roast humpback whale, a whole roast blue whale, a whole roast fin whale, a whole roast sei whale, a whole roast Bryde's whale, a whole roast minke whale, a whole roast sperm whale, a whole roast pygmy sperm whale, a whole roast dwarf sperm whale, a whole roast beaked whale, a whole roast Cuvier's beaked whale, a whole roast Baird's beaked whale, a whole roast Stejneger's beaked whale, a whole roast Andrews' beaked whale, a whole roast Hubbs' beaked whale, a whole roast Gray's beaked whale, a whole roast Longman's beaked whale, a whole roast Shepherd's beaked whale, a whole roast Tasman beaked whale, a whole roast Arnoux's beaked whale, a whole roast Southern bottlenose whale, a whole roast Northern bottlenose whale, a whole roast Sowerby's beaked whale, a whole roast Blainville's beaked whale, a whole roast Gervais' beaked whale, a whole roast True's beaked whale, a whole roast Ginkgo-toothed beaked whale, a whole roast Hector's beaked whale, a whole roast Layard's beaked whale, a whole roast Strap-toothed beaked whale, a whole roast Perrin's beaked whale, a whole roast Indian Ocean

By JOAN BARSTOW

It used to be that you were what you ate. But nowadays you are what you drive — especially if you're a man.

And that goes double when it comes to your love life.

"Cars reveal a lot about their owners," says New York psychologist William Perkinson.

"A person will tend to buy a car that reflects his personality and character traits."

Here's a breakdown of six different types of men and how they treat their cars:

1. The Caddy Type: He gives his car a pet name, buys like items in car-care products and keeps the wheels spotless and perfectly tuned.

"This man has a big heart and a good sense of humor," says Perkinson.

"He takes good care of his wife. In bed, he'll massage her back for hours and then promptly fall asleep.

"If his wife doesn't have a car, he'll drive her wherever she wants to go."

2. The Nerd: He has a car full of dolls — from Garfield on the windshield to Bart Simpson in the rear window.

"This is the Woody Allen type," says Perkinson.

"He's slightly absentminded and not always reliable. He's outraged by meanness.

"He happily hops into bed, but he's not very imaginative."

3. The Druggist: He's hot on technology — with a car boasting a turbo engine and overdrive.

"He's fast," says Perkinson, "both on the road and in bed.

"He knows only one speed, and his aim is the supervagina."

4. The Mama's Boy: He's happy driving any old jalopy because he's suspicious of technology.

"He's conservative, orderly and anxious," says Perkinson. "He loves comfort and is slightly introverted.

"He drives to visit his mother every Sunday for coffee.

"He'll only make love in the dark — and then only in the missionary position."

5. The Senior Manager: He drives a huge sedan loaded with ornaments and chrome.

"He loves according to the textbook," says Perkinson.

"He takes 15 minutes for lovemaking and then it's back to work.

"He'll even keep his glasses on during sex."

6. The Penguin Type: He wears an imitation Rolex and always drives with his car pointed in his hotel.

"He likes hanging out with the successful types," says Perkinson. "Everything is a hassle with him. He constantly talks to women, telling them how reluctant he is. He'll take a woman to an expensive restaurant and then make some excuse about forgetting his credit card at home.

"In bed, he's a disaster — often to the point of being impotent."

PURR-FECT HARMONY: Consuelo the singing cat joins owner Maria Garcia in a duet

Singing kitty knows 36 songs by heart

By NIKKI CHACON

Maria Garcia and her singing cat Consuelo are taking South America by storm. They've played to stunned audiences in Brazil, Bolivia, Colombia and Chile — and plan to cut their first record in June!

"Everything happened so fast that I still have to pinch myself to make sure I'm not dreaming," the 17-year-old woman told newsmen in Americana, Brazil.

"But I can't take all the credit for our success. A lot of people come to our shows to hear Consuelo. She's the only singing cat in the world."

The 5-year-old cat doesn't speak English or Spanish but she screeches, howls and meows in near perfect pitch. She knows 36 songs by heart and actually takes the lead in several of the duo's numbers, including their renditions of the pop hit "Wind Beneath My Wings" and Tammy Wynette's country classic, "Stand By Your Man."

"Consuelo wasn't anything special until I started taking voice lessons myself," said Miss Garcia. "When I sat down at the piano to practice she got in the habit of jumping up on the keyboard and meowing along with me.

"It was funny at first but it wasn't long before I realized that she really could carry a tune. Friends and neighbors started coming over to see her. Then we got on the TV news."

Promoter Sergio Ramos saw the segment and signed the duo to a contract.

And Ramos expects the ranks of fans to grow by leaps and bounds after the duo re-

Incredible creature

By SUSAN JAMISON

Scientists have unearthed the first complete fossil of a mermaid — and discovered that the fabled beauties were vicious predators who devoured sea life and hapless sailors like bloodthirsty sharks.

The fossil was discovered in a limestone rock outcropping on the coast of Yugoslavia, near Sibenik. Its perfectly preserved remains show a mouthful of razor-sharp teeth and powerful flesh-ripping jaws.

"The creature was female and probably swam the seas 12,000 years ago," said Dr. J. Patrick O'Connor, a California archaeologist who has worked on the Sibenik site since April 1982. "It was killed in an undersea landslide and its body was encrusted and gradually fossilized by the lime-stone around it.

"These are the first complete remains of a mermaid ever found. They prove that the creatures did, in fact, exist. They also show that mermaids were drastically different from the sexy beauties of myth. They were actuably terrifying predators who lived exclusively on living prey."

The five-foot, three-inch fossil has a human-like body above the waist with two strong arms and a large, well-developed head, Dr. O'Connor said. The hands are webbed with sharp claws and the eyes are oblique like a fish's eyes.

The jaw was designed to attack and tear the flesh of prey. The supernatural beast was preserved, still attached to the jawbone.

"We have heard plenty in ancient myths about how mermaids lured sailors to their death with their beauty and their hypnotic singing," Dr. O'Connor said. "But my guess is that no one who ever saw these creatures close up survived to describe what they looked like.

"From a distance they may have looked desirable, but I pity the poor sailor who met up with one of these. They were intelligent, evil and deadly."

Dr. O'Connor and his colleagues revealed their find in the Yugoslavian scientific journal Science Exchange. They say their studies indicate that the creature lived about 10,000 B.C. along the coast of Yugoslavia.

Dr. O'Connor says the sea creatures may have numbered in the millions at one time, but with climatic changes they slowly disappeared.

"We believe they are probably extinct now," Dr. O'Connor said. "But who knows? There may still be a few survivors somewhere in the world's oceans."

AMAZING discovery proves mermaids did exist. "And there may still be a few survivors somewhere in the world's oceans," says Dr. J. Patrick O'Connor, left.
